To Whom It May Concern,

I have had the good fortune of inheriting an 18-hole disc golf course at Franklin D. Roosevelt State Park located in Yorktown Heights, New York. With support from local residents, enthusiasts, and approval of the park system, the disc golf course was completed in the spring of 2000, largely with volunteer labor. Since that time, we have seen a steady increase in disc golfers using the park.

Our decision to support disc golf has helped increase park attendance, especially during the non-peak season. Local events such as charity tournaments have helped provide exposure for the opportunities and amenities our park has to offer. Our disc golf users are observant of park regulations and respectful in their interactions with other park users. I can honestly say that they are one of our only user groups about which we receive no complaints.

Annual maintenance requirements to keep the disc golf course operating equates to a minimal amount of effort for our maintenance department. The park has provided tools and supplies in many instances for improvements or upgrades over the years. Local volunteers and course users have provided the majority of the manpower for upkeep over the last 13 years. The relationship continues to be positive and rewarding for all involved.

If you wish to discuss a proposed disc golf course in your park, I would be happy to share my experience with you. Please feel free to contact me directly at 914-245-4434 x100 or Brian.Strasavich@parks.ny.gov
